

MARITIME LAW & ARBITRATION: A YOUNG LAWYER'S PERSPECTIVE

Most maritime disputes are resolved by arbitration. This is due to the preponderance of arbitration clauses in maritime-related contracts, whether commodity sale contracts, charterparties, bills of lading or salvage agreements.

The aim of this event is to explain to law students the advantages of maritime arbitration in Malaysia. The talk will commence with an introduction to maritime law and arbitration in Malaysia. It will then explain the role of the KLRCA in administering maritime arbitrations in Malaysia. The highlight of the talk will be the discussion on the advantages of the 2017 KLRCA Arbitration Rules for maritime arbitrations. The talk will end with a frank discussion on life as a young maritime practitioner at the Bar.

This talk should be of interest to all law students – whether undergraduates or postgraduates – and those contemplating a career at the Bar. Final year undergraduates and those sitting for qualifying exams in particular, should be interested in the discussions on life as a disputes lawyer and the pros and cons of specialisation at the Bar.

Trishelea Ann Sandosam is a Senior Associate in Skrine. She is a graduate of the University of Manchester and was called to the bar of England and Wales by the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn before qualifying as an Advocate and Solicitor in the High Court of Malaya. In 2014, she was awarded the Chevening Scholarship by the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office to pursue a Master's in Maritime Law at University College London. Her shipping practice focuses on dry shipping and she has represented a broad range of clients including ship repairers, ship managers, owners, freight forwarders, mortgagees, terminal operators and charterers. She is currently a committee member of the YPG KLRCA Maritime Arbitration Committee.

Clive Navin Selvapandian is a specialist Shipping and International Trade disputes lawyer. He has specialised in shipping disputes since 2010 and holds an LL.M in Maritime Law from the University of Southampton. He has been involved in both 'dry shipping' disputes (claims on bills of lading and charterparties etc.) and 'wet shipping' disputes (ship collisions, pollution at sea, tonnage limitation suits, etc.). He also has some experience in disputes involving multi-modal transport contracts, international sale contracts and the Incoterms.

Clive is a member of the Malaysian Bar's Shipping and Admiralty Law Committee, the International Malaysian Society of Maritime Law, the International Bunker Industry Association and the Inter-Pacific Bar Association (Dispute Resolution & Arbitration and Maritime Law Committees). He is also an associate of the Royal Institution of Naval Architects.
