3:15 p.m. - 4:15 p.m.	Session 1 - Energy Shift in Southeast Asia: Arbitration, Trade and Investment
-----------------------	---

Southeast Asia is undergoing a transformative energy shift driven by a complex blend of economic growth, energy demands, geopolitical pressures and environmental concerns. The region's commitment to energy transition presents not only opportunities for sustainable development and economic diversification but also challenges related to legal frameworks, foreign investment and effective dispute resolution. This session explores the intricate link between energy transition and international trade while examining their intersection with arbitration across Southeast Asia countries.

4:15 p.m. - 4:45 p.m.	Break
-----------------------	-------

4:45 p.m. - 5:45 p.m.	Session 2 - CIPAA in A Decade: Discovering the Evolution and Effectiveness of Statutory Adjudication
-----------------------	--

The adjudication mechanism introduced under the Construction Industry Payment and Adjudication Act (CIPAA) 2012 has been instrumental in ensuring cash flow in construction projects, alongside providing a swift and cost-effective resolution process for construction-related disputes. Over a decade since its implementation, the adjudication framework in Malaysia has significantly evolved in response to the users' needs and development in the construction industry.

Featuring an overview of the AIAC's role in administering adjudication matters, this forward-looking discourse will highlight the effectiveness and practical benefits of statutory adjudication, including landmark cases that have strengthened the legal landscape. The panellists will also discuss and explore strategies to enhance operational uniformity and accessibility of the adjudication regime, particularly for the stakeholders in East Malaysia.
