Valuation & Event Analysis In International Arbitration

The talk will focus on the role of valuation in international arbitration, covering the major types of disputes requiring valuation evidence. It will survey comparatively the different methods, comparing cost approaches, market approaches and income approaches. It will consider specific problems that can occur in emerging markets. It will then look more closely at the technique known as events analysis, one of the ways to value the impact of new information and the impact of breaches. It will explain the mechanics of event analysis, its theoretical justification and assess its relative advantages and disadvantages. The analysis of the technique will be conducted in the context of NERA's extensive testifying experience.

Peter Bird

Affiliated Consultant
NERA Economic Consulting

Dr. Peter Bird is an experienced advisor in the energy and infrastructure sectors. He has a PhD in economics from Cambridge University, and early in his career, he played a key part in designing the UK electricity market. He is currently based in Singapore and works with companies throughout South-east Asia.

Dr. Bird is an experienced expert witness in international arbitration focused on the power and gas sector and has testified in several forums. His experience includes acting as an expert witness in ICC arbitrations between two European utilities and between a utility and a contractor, and advising on a gas arbitration in Singapore.

Dr. Bird has guided corporations on acquisitions and disposals in energy and infrastructure; borrowers on project finance, acquisition financing, and debt restructuring; and government entities in the UK, Continental Europe, South America, Asia, Australia and New Zealand on energy industry restructuring and privatizations in developed and emerging economies.

As a senior advisor at Rothschild, where he was formerly Executive Vice-Chairman, Dr. Bird's focus is on M&A in power, utilities, and infrastructure. He co-led the advisory group's global power team on high-profile, politically-sensitive transactions and built an international reputation as an expert in electricity sector restructuring and privatization. Prior to that, Dr. Bird worked as an economic consultant in the oil and nuclear sectors and as an academic economist at Stirling University, a role in which he authored more than 30 articles in peer-reviewed economics journals.

For nine years, he was a director of Vector Ltd, a publicly listed infrastructure network company. He was a founder director of three donor-financed supporters of pro-poor private infrastructure, namely InfraCo Asia, Infraco Africa and Green Africa Power.
